cotton materials held such a position of honor.

Organdie, however, is the weave which enjoys the greatest popularity.

A delightfully simple frock is developed in orchid-pink organdie. The bodice has a square neckline edged with filet lace. The short, kimono sleeves are trimmed to correspond. A sash of Natlet-blue faille ribbon is tied in a bow at the back with long streamer ends.

The distinguishing feature of this frock is the overblouse of flowered organdie. The background is a pale tone of orchid, while the flowers are in the pastel colorings. Natlet-blue being the predominating color. This smart little garment is cut in one piece, the only seams being under the arms.

A broad-brimmed hat which was designed to harmonize with the frock is of orchid-colored organdie. The full crown is shirred over cords and a band of narrow ribbon is drawn about its base. The brim is also covered with the fabric.

It would be hard to imagine anything more dainty than a knitting bag of orchid-pink organdie. It is gathered on straight rods and finished with clusters of silk apples in the pastel colorings, and bows of narrow, orchid-pink ribbon.

In Honor of Mrs. Ingels.

Miss Mary Robinson entertained charmingly at bridge on Thursday afternoon at her home on East Main street in honor of Mrs. George Ingels, of Richmond, Va., who is her guest for a few days. It was one of the most delightful gatherings of the week and for the occasion the house was lovely with plants, peonies, flags, roses and other flowers of the season. A delicious lunch followed the game and the afternoon was all too much enjoyed. The first prize, a handpainted patent leather bag was won by Mrs. Walton Rounsavall and the two other pieces, pretty porch vases filled with flowers, were given to Mrs. Matt Simpson and Mrs. Ernest Bradley. Miss Robinson was assisted by her mother, Mrs. James Robinson, and the guests to meet Mrs. Ingels were, Mrs. Matt Simpson, Miss Laura Shropshire, Mrs. Edward L. Hutchinson, Miss Nannie Bain Didlake, Mrs. Walton Rounsavall, Mrs. Victor Dodge, Mrs. Ernest Bradley, Mrs. Joe Moore, Mrs. John Skain, Miss Carrie Lee Hathaway, Mrs. Robert Strader, Mrs. Spencer Brooker.

A Reminder of the Red Cross Drive.

The Lake Division News says:

"Just to remind you—

"That the big Red Cross Second War Fund Drive is here.

"Complete instructions and supplies have gone to all carpenters. Headquarters after three months' work has done everything possible in the way of preparation. The division staff, however, will be on the job till the end to aid the three State managers in caring for any additional needs chapter managers may have.

"Every worker, women as well as men, must now prepare to rally to the support of the chapter managers, not merely by giving their financial support, but in gaining the final support of less active members and non-members.

"The next two weeks require the maximum cooperation of everyone. Selfishness and personalities must be shelved, if the Red Cross War Council is to get its $9,400,000 assigned in quotas to Lake Division chapters."

Miss Delcamp Resigns.

Miss Mary E. Delcamp who was recently reelected as a teacher in the Lancaster High school for next year, has resigned to accept a similar position in the Lexington High school. Lancaster's loss is Lexington's gain.

Miss Francis B. Clark, of Mason county, has been elected to succeed Miss Delcamp. Miss Clark is a graduate of the Maysville High school, of Hamilton College, and of Transylvania College, having graduated in the class with Miss Delcamp. Miss Clark comes well recommended and will no doubt fill the vacancy satisfactorily, since in addition to her training she has had two years' experience in the Franklin county high school at Bridgeport. — Lancaster Record.

Beautiful Announcement Party.

The faculty in home economics at the University of Kentucky entertained on Saturday afternoon in the practice house on Harrison avenue with a beautiful informal party for the members of the department to announce the engagement of Miss Ruby Buckman, one of the popular members of the home economics faculty, to Dr. G. L. Crisler, of the University of Missouri. It was a charming gathering of the friends of the lovely bride-to-be to extend congratulations and best wishes for her happiness. The announcement was written on tiny cards placed at each plate and after being read, a lovely custom was passed and all joined in drinking to bright toasts to her, future. Ice tea, sandwiches and nuts were served and the hours were passed informally. The rooms were lovely with plants and quantities of spring flowers, the tea table also being adorned with blossoms and lights. The bride-elect is charming and attractive and is much loved and admired here where her resignation was received with much regret. She has been making Lexington her home for six years as head of the household arts in the Home Economic Department at the university and will be much missed here. Dr. Crisler, formerly on the extension staff of the university, is now a member of the faculty of Missouri. He is attractive and popular and highly esteemed and has a host of Kentucky friends. The hostesses for the occasion were Miss Mary E. Sweeny and Miss Linda Furnell, and were assisted by Mrs. Frank L. McVey, Dean Anna Hamilton, Mrs. Thomas Cooper and Miss Crane.

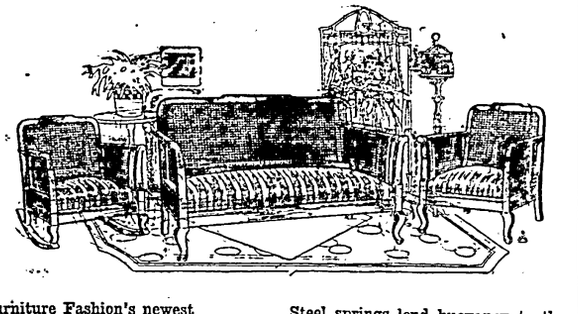
WALL PAPER 10c PER ROLL AND UP

This Velour and Cane PARLOR SUITE $102



Furniture Fashion's newest decree

This Queen Anne suite typifies the "last word" in furniture. It is built along the lines of a popular period design, and is paneled with cane and upholstered in velour. The frames are mahogany, finished in the deep tint which lends added attractiveness to the classic design, and displays the fine grain of the mahogany to best advantage.

Steel springs lend buoyancy to the seats

Every construction detail in this suite is carefully looked after. The seats are upholstered over oil-tempered springs; all joints are bolted or screwed; the cane is taut and the velour of a fine grade. The result is a suite that is worth far more than the price to which it was built. An inspection of it at our store will satisfy you on this.
