PROFANE MEN ARE HONEST

Representative of New York Surety Company Discusses Types

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 10—Profane men, fat men, and above all, married men are considered best risks by surety companies declared Frederick N. Whitney, representative of the National Surety Company of New York, who addressed the Kentucky State Road Engineers' Good Roads Congress at the closing session today.

"The profane man," the speaker declared, "lets vent to his wrath by cursing, but they seldom approximate what happens to others. Fat men are too content with themselves and the world to harm their fellow men. Love for their family keeps married men honest."

From the standpoint of honesty, Mr. Whitney said further, the record show that women adhere to the Golden Rule more than men. He said the "weak" and the "fair" make excellent risks, and that the races of Northern Europe are more honest than those of Southern Europe. Racially the Chinese lead in honesty, he said.

Among those who made talks on the road law and finances were Judge C. W. Wells, Owensboro; Judge Lucien Kavanaugh, New Castle; Professor Robert Terrill, Oklahoma, and his brother, Professor Ben Terrill, Lexington.
